DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-73 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cosman (US 6,4058,072 B1).

Cosman anticipates all claimed features in claims 1-73.

Claims 1 and 32: Cosman discloses a method an apparatus for computed-assisted (i.e. computer guided) surgery system during surgical procedure comprising a receive information via receiver on a n object of interest, tracking the position of the tool obtained from the received information with reference coordinates to provide the location of the surgical tools in relationship to the reference coordinate and the object of interest and providing an indication of scalar distance to a user of said tool.

Claims 2-21 and 33-52: Cosman discloses further that the method and system above includes visual indicator providing visual information that includes three dimensional spatial relationship amongst the patient (object of interest), surgical tool, and the imaging device where the information are numerically and graphically display on display unit 39B. Since, the method and system in Cosman's disclosure is based on the feedback system where the position of the surgical tool is continuously tracked during the surgical procedure the acceptable range and the haptic shape defining a desired shape for an anatomy of a patient is based on the conditions of the object of interest.

Claims 22-31 and 53-64: The limitations in claims 15-31 and 46-64 include the feedback indication method and system that includes limitations such as audio warning or indicator. The audio indicator providing a feedback to warn the operator on the range of the surgical tools location is functionally equivalent to visual indicator to provide the same feedback. Thus, the audio indicator is merely a design choice to provide the surgical tool's positional feedback.

Claims 66-73: Cosman utilizes CT and optical imaging system along with reference markers to track the position of the surgical tools as described above. More specifically, Cosman illustrates in figure 1 where the positional tracking information are processed with computer to provide the information visual on display 39. Therefore, the Cosman's system includes computer and computer readable medium storing instructions which when executed by a computer cause the computer to execute the steps disclosed above.
